Collins provides construction management and inspection services to projects in the fields of transportation and waterfront engineering. We've worked on projects ranging from the rehabilitation of military waterfront structures, to the total reconstruction of major interstate interchanges, including the largest interchange reconstruction project in the country. Collins also has a substantial background providing such services to the development of recreational and public facilities.

Collins' services pair extensive experience with facility owners and contractors, giving us insight into the concerns and goals of owners, as well as the methodology and needs of contractors. The knowledge gained through our extensive work with contractors allows us to make cost saving recommendations for our clients.
